

Dear amazing parents,

Are you ready for the upcoming school year? As your child's teacher, I have some important words to share with you! These words are not just useful for kids but also for parents since you are our important teammates in nurturing children together!

Let's collaborate to build a supportive and motivating learning atmosphere! We all know that home-school teamwork is crucial. Let's strive together for our children's development and education!

Don't forget to have faith in your child's skills! Each child is special and has their own strengths and talents. We'll work hard to encourage their potential and support them in achieving their dreams!

Third, provide kids with adequate room for self-directed learning, allowing them to tackle challenges independently and grow from mistakes, helping them become persevering and knowledgeable individuals!

Remember to always check in on how your child is feeling emotionally and mentally every day! Both emotional intelligence and mental health are crucial. Let's team up to support the overall growth of our children!

Three years of kindergarten life has passed by in the blink of an eye. Let us hold hands and open up page after page of wonderful campus life for our children.
